About Me

I am a hardworking and motivated individual with superb communication skills with both my own age group and those that are older than me. I have exceptional time-management and problem solving abilities and I am always eager to complete any challenges or any tasks to the best of my ability. I am a very quick and passionate learner. For instance, I have spent the last 4+ years teaching myself computer science creating small projects ready for my future portfolio and contributing towards game creators that have over 1.4 million members in their group. As a result of my unique skill set in computing I started to reach out to communities and social media platforms to start freelancing and earnt for myself.
